I was looking around my home office the other day and I decided I'd had my share of old boats. This was evident by the variety of pictures of these boats I have hanging on the office walls – as well as the photo albums of the various boat projects from start to finish on the book shelves. Most of these were wood – 2 were fiberglass. Each has a story that goes with it. How I found the boat (or did it find me?); the decision to purchase the boat and the ongoing negotiations surrounding that purchase, as well as the time the boat spent in my care and then – of course – the eventual sale of each one. I still actually have 4 boats and it occurs to me I am going to have to make some decisions on 3 of these this year. 2 of these boats have pretty much reached a point where there's not much left for them except the burn pile. That thought makes me shudder when I attach it to an old wood boat – but efforts to find them a home with enough energy to do all the work necessary to bring them back have been ongoing for a number of years now without success. Well – maybe I can put this decision off a bit longer. Eventually they both will probably just rot off the trailers out in the field I'm storing them in. Of the 4, I can only really put 1 in the water. The 3rd one is going to be an ongoing project for a long time. For me that's what the fun is all about.

And now that I've sold the 2 fiberglass boats, I wish I had both of them back so I could take advantage of one of our newer members – Scott Bruesewitz – and all of his experience with fiberglass renewal and refinishing. Scott will be sharing some of that experience at our chapter workshop to be hosted by him on Saturday March 16th at 9:00 am. Be sure to check out the information on this workshop in this issue. I know in my case wood doesn't scare me nearly as much as the list I came up with of "things to do" on those 2 glass boats. Fiberglass boats from the '50's and the 60's and 70's are becoming more and more popular with collectors. Check out Scott's "bio" in this issue. You may think you will never be interested in an "old" fiberglass boat, but just wait. I've seen a couple of restorations and preservation examples of these boats that really turned heads and brought back memories.

On April 20th we will have our spring meeting at Carp's Landing in Lake Mills. This will be a good opportunity for those of us in the eastern part of the state to wander over and spend some time with our chapter members from the Madison area and points west. Carp's landing is a great place with good food (and drink). Lake Mills is just off I-94, a pretty straight shot from the greater Milwaukee area. Please be sure and register by April 15th and if you have questions give Rich Lepping a call. His contact information is on the registration form included with this issue.

Based on feedback from a variety of members I've talked to – the Milwaukee Boat Show at State Fair Park was another success for our chapter. Unfortunately I missed the whole thing due to a particularly nasty go around with the "flu". That stuff just hung on and hung on and from all I've heard I was far from alone in my dance with this virus.

This January boat show has become a very popular way for chapter members to gather and shoot the horse poop about boats while promoting and showing what our passion is all about. A special thanks to all who haul their boats out of storage and travel across the wintry mess to the exhibit and then haul them back again after having spent a number of hours staffing the show. I know that the trip home from this show on Sunday was test full of all the elements a Wisconsin winter can throw at us.

As I'm writing this it is Saturday, February 16, 2013. When I went out to get the newspaper this morning and head over for breakfast at Jimmy's restaurant, the temperature on my van read 3 degrees. I'm at the point where I've started mumbling: "all right, that's enough of this stuff". While scanning the paper I looked up and saw a "hard freeze" warning for the northern and western portions of Florida. Made me feel better.

But, I think we've got to be about "over the hump" here and maybe there's less time ahead to endure before its boating season than we've got under our belt for the current winter. Patience all – warm breezes and sunshine are not all that far off.

Scott Bruesewitz may be new to the Glacier Lakes Chapter, but he isn't new to sailing and classic boats

Story by Scott Bruesewitz

I was born in 1956 and grew up on Milwaukee's south side. When I was 7 our first family boat was a 16' Cruisers Incorporated Labstarke Runabout. I then joined South Shore Yacht Club(SSYC) in 1968 as part of the Junior Sailing Program.

My first restoration was an 8' fiberglass sailing pram in the basement of our family home. Thru high school, I developed a desire, more like an addiction to work on boats. My junior year of high school, I took a weekend job at the local boatyard, which became my career. It was there that I learned the skills of fiberglass repair and hull painting. My hobby became picking up inexpensive or discarded boats and creating champions. One boat led to another and by 1980 we won our first National Championship in the International 210 Class. Three years later at the age of 27, we won the Nationals in the S2-7.9 Class. In 2005, we won our third National Championship in the Tarten-10 Class. Throughout this era, I still found time to be involved in Offshore Sailboat Ocean Racing. I had the opportunity to sail to Australia and sail in places including Hawaii, Jamaica, England, New Zealand, and France. My offshore career culminated with numerous offshore races including Miami-Montego Race, Honolulu TransPac race, 2 Sydney-Hobart Races, and 1 Fastnet Race as part of the Australian Admirals Cup team. By now I had earned the reputation of a "speed shop" capable of taking a discarded hull and turning it into a champion for myself or customers. I am also capable of repairing extensive grounding and serious collision and storm damage. All told I have completely restored 14 boats and repaired and repainted countless others.

In 1991, I had the opportunity to purchase the 1955 Perma Craft 26, now known as Chloe. The boat was usable, but in rough cosmetic shape. The first project revolved around the cockpit and cabin, replacing the upholstery. Next we replaced the mahogany engine box and helm seats and refinished the exterior varnish. The boat was used in this condition until 2001 when we stripped the hull and decks and repainted using Dupont's Imron polyurethane paint. 2004 the engine was pretty tired and was removed for complete rebuild. At this time, I took the opportunity to replace the plywood subflooring and teak decking as well as the mahogany inner cockpit sidewalls. This project was interrupted by 2 more sailboat restorations. The Chloe restoration was completed in summer of 2012.

Tim Mason, of the Century "Relic", persuaded me to take Chloe to the Pewaukee in-water Antique and Classic Boat Show. I cannot remember having so much fun. I had always been searching for information on the Perma Crafts and finally located and purchased a second Perma Craft from Marine City, Michigan. Upon bringing the boat to Milwaukee and running the boat on Lake Michigan, it was determined that this boat would require extensive restoration.

The engines have been removed and sent for full rebuilding. The hull has been gutted to the skins as the stringers and bulkheads which create the structure of the fiberglass hull had deteriorated beyond repair. The mahogany trim and windshield will also require replacement. Interior and cockpit trim and upholstery will also be replaced.

The excitement of working with pieces of history cannot be overestimated. I have found a new addiction to replace my years of competitive sailboat racing. Since I have been told that I do not have the oldest fiberglass powerboat in the area, we have engaged in a search for one from the 1940s.

8th Annual, Madison Area Antique & Classic Boat Show August 2nd & 3rd, 2013

You are invited to take part in the eighth annual, Madison Area Antique & Classic Boat Show. The renowned Christy's Landing Restaurant will again be the site for the show on Saturday, August 3rd. This location is simply outstanding for the public to view these beautiful boats on Saturday. On Friday we will be hosting a tour of the Madison chain-of-lakes; including Lake Waubesa, Lake Monona, & Lake Mendota (weather permitting). The tour will break for lunch at the UW-Madison Union Terrace and include a surprise tour of an interesting area on campus.

One of the most important aspects of this show is that the majority of the proceeds will go to the Clean Lakes Alliance. This organization is dedicated to improving the lake quality within the Yahara Lakes' watershed. For 2013, our goal is to raise $5,000 by receiving donations from the public and area vendors along with offering some unique items for sale at the show's silent auction.

Awards will be given in several categories including the Best Chris Craft, Best Century, Best Inboard Motor Boat, Best Outboard Motor Boat, Best Non-Motorized Boat, Best Fiberglass Classic, and of course the "Best of Show". This will also include the public selecting the People's Choice Award Boat.

Please return your registration form quickly, as we are limited to approximately 45 boat slips (entries accepted on a first serve basis). Also, please include a brief history of your boat and a photograph (e-mail preferred) to enhance our boat show program booklet, which will feature all the show participants' boats.

The enclosed Schedule of Events and Registration Form should help answer your questions. If you need additional information, please contact Mark Walters or Andy McCormick via e-mail or telephone (see below). Should you desire lodging, we list local hotels on the enclosed map.

Thank you in advance for your interest and involvement. We look forward to seeing you at the show!

Boat Docking-an Introduction

Article reprinted from Sunnyland Chapter magazine, The Sheerline, Fall 2012
By Charles T. Low-Article appeared in www.boatsafe.com

We can't cover everything about boat docking in one sitting, but I think you'll be surprised at how many of the basic principles of close quarters maneuvering are embodied in the example docking which I will be discussing shortly. First let me answer these two questions: Is this boat handling exposition for novice boaters? Yes, absolutely. Is it for expert boaters? Yes. Experts often pilot their boats by an instinctive feel, and are delighted finally to see and to understand why it is that what they do works so well.

That brings up another important point. Learning to dock is done on the water, in our boats, not by reading about it here. Book learning and good teaching are important, (I would say crucial), and allow us to focus our minds more quickly and clearly than just by using the trial and error method. However, ultimately, we must accept the responsibility ourselves for learning the mechanics and feel of boat handling, for what works and what does not, for us and for our particular boats, by actually doing it.

Port-side-to -- a docking dissected

For the present purposes, I'm going to assume calm conditions, and not factor in the effects of wind. Wind is probably the hardest thing to contend with when docking a boat, but there's a lot of water to pass under the bridge before that discussion, so I'll leave it out for now. Many of the techniques we're about to cover, however, will also prove useful in coping with wind.

What's your angle?

The first thing to notice is that this boater is coming in at an angle. This makes it much easier to aim for a particular spot, and to bring the boat in close to the dock without scraping. There isn't always enough "sea room" to do this, but when possible, using an angled approach makes life simpler. Coasting and the power turn

Keep up the momentum

The next thing the boater will do, as the dock draws nearer, is to start to turn the boat. However, this is also about the time that he or she wants to decelerate to a stop, in reverse gear. While slowing down, the vessel may be hard to steer. This is largely because very little water will be flowing over the rudder (or worse, over the outdrive leg of an I/O).

Fortunately, boats in motion have momentum: once in motion, they tend to continue in motion, and once turning, they tend to continue to turn. This sometimes confounds the less skilled skipper, and yet momentum is exactly what to use when all other steering options fail. At just what point to turn, and how hard and for how long, I cannot say. It will vary by boat, by the prevailing conditions, and even by the skipper's individual style. But the boat must turn, and often this will be done by a brief, firm pulse of power, with the wheel hard over. Part way through the maneuver, by which time the boat is in reverse gear, the only thing that keeps it turning, and that keeps it sliding sideways towards the dock, is momentum. The skipper did this on purpose, took a run at it, so to speak, albeit very gently and cautiously, and then skidded the boat into its slip.

A walk in the dock

One final thing: it is very common for propellers to thrust asymmetrically, more on one side than the other, and in some boats the effect is often especially strong in reverse gear. It's called "walking", because it almost seems as if the stern of the boat wants to walk sideways, when you first engage reverse propulsion, rather than go backwards.

It's because of this effect that we are discussing specifically port-side-to docking. Right hand propellers walk the stern to port, in reverse (a minority of propellers are "left hand" - for them, this whole discussion is a mirror image). So, not quite as much turning momentum is required as would otherwise be. Asymmetrical thrust can be a nuisance, so at least in circumstances like this when it can be helpful, we might as well avail ourselves of it.

Conclusion

There is no conclusion to boat docking. I have yet to hear the final word, and I've probably discussed and studied it more than most. Even if this port-side-to docking were all there was to know (and it's not, it's just the barest beginning), one could still spend a lifetime honing and refining the skills and techniques it requires, and the better feel for boat handling thus engendered would spill over into all of our other close quarters maneuvering. And my wish for us all is that we continue to hone and refine for a long, long time, and that we love every minute we spend doing it! Editors Note: Article courtesy of www.boatsafe.com.
